Horse Astray and Buggy Smashed. A horse and buggy was picked up last night at 8 o'clock on the Bladensburg turnnight at So'clock on the Bladensburg turnpike, the buggy being overturned and very hadly broken. When found, the buggy was empty, except that a coat and vest was found in it. The horse has some cuts on the limbs. He was taken charge of by Mr.
G. W. Fureron, a clerk in the Army Medical Museum, who lives near Montello station, on the B. & O. R. R., who put the horse in his stable and doctored his wounds.
The owner can obtain the same by calling

The employees of Mr. Norris Peters, lithographer of Pennsylvania avenue, last evening met at the residence of Mr. James Frame, one of the oldest employees, on Maryland avenue, near Sixth street, and presented Mr. Frame with a handsome gold-headed cane. The presentation speech was neatly made by Mr. Adolph Levy on behalf of the workmen, and Mr. Frame as neatly and feelingly responded. Mr. Frame is about to visit his boyhood home in Scotland.

Dr. Rhodes' Transfusing Battery, Dr. Rhodes' Transfusing Battery, advertised in another column, is an article of real merit and is worth its weight in gold. It will positively do what is claimed for it. Money cheerfully refunded to all using it a reasonable length of time if they are not satisfied. Mr. R. K. Helphenstine, the well-known druggist, Fourteenth and F streets—Ebbitt House—is the agent.

feet,
I'll draw the boat, and, thinking but of Will luncheon eat.

Mark how the placid tide flows smoothly Note yonder bank aglow with golden Tis nature's specie bank. What's in that Ugh! Steak, of course. Sip life's sweet cup of Joy, love, in this spot; For thee no after taste, no bitter dregs, 'Tis nectur. Hah! I've told you I cannot Eat hard-boiled eggs.

The dappled shade of willow and of ash Spreads o'er the verdant grass, for thy and love—the salad dressing's gone to And soaked the cake !

What? Hang it all! Each day I speak in vain. Lucinda, this is shameful—only look! No mustard on the sandwiches sgain! Discharge that cook!

Preparing the Yorktown Camp.

Col. Wm. P. Craighill returned from Yorktown to Baltimore yesterday, where he had been to lay out the grounds for the military camp and arrange numerous matters for the approaching celebration. He went carefully over the Temple farm offered for the encampment grounds of the multitude, and made selections for the different bodies to be located there. Near the Moore house, on this farm, will be located the Centennial Association, the Masons will be in the same neighborhood, and the balance of the farm will be devoted to the military camp. The farm has an area of about 400 acres. Col. Craighill located exactly the site of the monument, near the eastern edge of Yorktown, and the work of laying the foundation will be commenced at once. Two large piers will be built in addition to the two now in existence. These piers will be placed one above and one below the present wharves, and the work will be pushed vigorously forward. Investigations were made relative to furnishing the camp with water and for lighting it. A steam engine will be put up and water numbed were made relative to furnishing the camp with water and for lighting it. A steam engine will be put up and water pumped from Wormley's creek and distributed in pipes through the camp. It has not yet been decided whether to light the camp by electricity or by the ordinary method. An inquiry is being made into the cost of the different methods. Arrangements are also being made about supplying the camp with CRITIC readers who have passed down Ninth street, between E and F, have seen two large blocks of coal on the sidewalk. Thursday, after dark, John Harmond was seen attempting to shoulder one of these immense blocks. After watching him some time, the conclusion was that John had turned "crank" and was a candidate for St. Elizabeth. With some trepidation, not knowing whether he was the possessor of an "English bull-dog" or not, The Critic man approached him and the following conversation was had:

"Entric man—"Well, John, what are you doing?"

John—"I am trying to steal this piece of coal?"

John—"I am trying to steal this piece of coal?"

Critic—"What in Hades do you want with coal and the mercury running over the top of the thermometer?"

CRITIC—"What in Hades do you want with coal and the mercury running over the top of the thermometer?"

John—"I don't want the coal, but I am trying to qualify myself for a position."

CRITIC—"What do you mean—do you want to break into the jail and keep company with Guiteau?"

John—"Oh no, I want to break into the Post-office Department. I want to be an expert on Star-routes at $12 a day and expenses paid, and I saw P. M. G. James, and he asked me my qualifications, and I told him I had stolen corn, and meat and chickens during the late war, and had not been too particular in my inquiries as to the previous ownership of some horses I had bought, but he said that won't do, everybody did that in war times, I must show my ability by some heary operations. So I am trying to steal this coal, I don't know anything heavier except one of the Treasury columns. If I can get away with it, I and wickedly wasted in private houses.

In one of his reports the assistant engineer undertakes to say that a great quantity of water is used in sprinkling sidewalks, parkings, etc. This statement cannot be made to hold water any better than any other of the allegad engineer. The supply is 26,000,000 per day. The greatest fisw, as stated in the letter of Gen. Meigs, is 1,162,000 by four, gives 290,500 gallons as the greatest possible amount used by said sprinklers. And so on, ad infinitum, through the whole chapter of misstatements.
